Services

Family Relationship Services (FRS) aims to provide relationship support services for individuals, families and communities. A qualified and licensed psychologist provides family mediation and counselling services at FRS. Please contact for your initial consultation.

Counselling

FRS provides family and relationship counselling as well as various specialist-counselling services. Most counselling services are conducted face-to-face but online and telephone counselling are also offered for people in various atolls and for those with special needs.

Some of the types of counselling services include:

- Individual counselling
- Family counselling
- Relationship counselling
- Substance abuse counselling
- Grief counselling
- Career counselling
- Online counselling
- Telephone counselling

Family mediation

Family mediation is a confidential, non-binding process in which a trained family mediator acts as a neutral person who facilitates communication between disputants and assists parties in reaching a mutually acceptable resolution of all or part of their dispute.

Some of the types of family mediation services are

- Reconciliation
- Divorce mediation and post-divorce mediation (matters including custody, visitation; child support and property division)
- Separation mediation
- Parent-teen conflict mediation
- Elder care mediation
- Carer support mediation
- Blended family mediation (resolving disputes that step and blended family members often face)
